

I am an overseas citizen of India. In 1978, I graduated from the University of Calicut and started teaching in Lesotho in the Cambridge system. I migrated to South Africa in 1982, had a rewarding teaching career starting in a catholic mission school and moving on to tertiary teaching in the Dept. of Biological Sciences at the University of Northwest. My family migrated to Melbourne, Australia as permanent residents around the year 2000. I had excellent exposure to Applied Science (Lecturer) and Health Science departments (Senior Lecturer) at Monash University from 2003-2007. Since 2007, I am working as a permanent staff member at ACU, trying to balance my teaching, research and community service commitments.
