

I have a Ph D in economics from the most prestigious University of Western Australia. The University of Western Australia awarded University Research Scholarship for Ph D studies.

I have taught Economics in Australia for about two decades. In addition, I have taught Economics at Fukuoka University and Yokohama University in Japan and PAU, Ludhiana, India.

I have published two books on Digital Economy and Outsourcing from USA publisher Idea Group. In addition, I have published two books by Palgrave Macmillan, UK on Foreign Investment in Developing Countries and Foreign Investment in Rapidly Developing Countries; The Chinese and Indian Experience. I have published chapters in books and articles in professional academic journals. I have participated in national and internal conferences and served as session chairman, Chairman of Discussion Group, Discussion opener in a plenary session and other organizational positions. I have reviewed papers for international conferences for various associations.

I have actively participated in building links with universities and colleges in developing countries.

I have achieved international recognition for my contribution to the success of teaching, research and community programs of the university programs where I have worked four decades. My name appears in Who's Who in World and similar publications.

I have preformed community service by teaching at the University of Third Age (U3A).

I have the unique and rare of teaching the second generation of my students. I have actively participated in building human capital in my native village in India. I have offered scholarships to the bright students in higher classes in my village school. The scope of these scholarships will be enhanced in the coming years. I have participated in various activities in my own community and building links with other communities during my stay in Australia for over three decades.