

I am a lecturer in science education and research interest is in educational aspects of global warming, scientific literacy and chemistry education. I had my basic school education in a village government high school in Malayalam medium, graduated from Kerala university in chemistry and did masters at Kanpur university.

I have been migrated to Australia in 1996 and at present working at LaTrobe University Melbourne. I always used the best aspects of education from India mainly looking at knowledge base and education from Australia to be an independent learner and attaining more skills in my career.
