

Dr Alpana Roy joined the UTS Law Faculty in 2006 with considerable teaching and research experience. Immediately prior to joining UTS, Alpana was employed as a Lecturer at the Faculty of Law in the University of Sydney for a number of years. She is a graduate in Law from the University of Sydney, and has completed her doctorate in intellectual property law from that university. She also has qualifications in social science, and postgraduate qualifications in journalism and higher education.

Alpana has published a number of articles in intellectual property law in refereed journals. She is a commissioned author for several major legal publishers, including Thomson/Lawbook, LexisNexis Butterworths, CCH, and the Oxford University Press. She is regularly invited to speak at seminars and conferences on a wide range of intellectual property topics.

Alpana has practiced as a barrister, and also as a solicitor for a number of years both internationally and in Australia. In Sydney, she has practiced as a solicitor for two large corporate law firms, and has also been employed as a government lawyer. She is an accredited mediator with The Institute of Arbitrators & Mediators Australia, and currently holds the position of Special Counsel at an international legal and corporate advisory firm.
